Course 1:

Title IX: Regulations & Roles Overview

While all staff members have some responsibility under Title IX, the Title IX coordinator is charged with managing overall compliance and ensuring all employees and students on campus are aware of their obligations and their protections under Title IX. This course provides administrators with an overview of Title IX requirements and the role of the Title IX Coordinator. Topics include: sexual harassment, methods of awareness and prevention, ways to address sexual harassment and procedures for investigation and grievance processes.

Course 2:

Sexual Harassment: Policy & Prevention

Sexual harassment can have lasting effects for individuals. People who feel harassed at work can suffer from psychological trauma and stress-induced symptoms such as headaches, weight loss, lack of sleep, and even post-traumatic stress disorder. It's up to each and every person in an organization to create a positive, safe, and respectful work environment that doesn't tolerate harassment, bullying, or any other exclusive behaviors. This course provides supervisors, managers and employees with strategies for harassment identification, awareness and prevention. Topics include negative and exclusive behaviors, legal remedies for people who experience harassment, ways to create a healthy work culture, and others.

Course 3:

Title IX and Sexual Harassment

Title IX applies to a variety of topics and can be confusing to some. Although most employees don't need to be legal experts, everyone needs to know some basic information about Title IX. This introductory course is designed to provide postsecondary staff members with information about the importance and implications of Title IX and sexual harassment, including sexual assault. Topics covered include the definition of sexual harassment, Title IX's regulations and obligations, and the elements of effective policies.

Course 4:

Sexual Harassment: Staff-to-Staff

Sexual harassment can have lasting effects for individuals, organizations and the community, such as psychological trauma; a hostile work environment for employees; damaged reputations; negative publicity; civil liability and even criminal charges. This is why employers can't take sexual harassment lightly, and employees should understand their roles and obligations if they experience or witness it on the job. This course is designed to provide employees with a basic understanding of sexual harassment and strategies to maintain a harassment-free environment.

Course 5:

Title IX Roles of the Employees

Title IX is key to ensuring all students are free from discrimination and exclusion in their access to education. But making sure all students are protected isn't completely on the shoulders of Title IX Coordinators. They often rely on members of the campus community to help. This course provides college and university faculty and staff with an overview of Title IX and the responsibility for Title IX enforcement by employees. Topics include: employee role in Title IX enforcement, key terms and definitions and reporting procedures.

Course 6:

Title IX and Sexual Harassment Prevention for Employees

Informed faculty and staff are vital to the effective response to and prevention of sexual harassment on campus. This course is designed to provide essential knowledge on Title IX regulations so you can assist students or colleagues when they reach out for help and to give you background on recent laws to help guide your response. Topics covered include why people commit sexual harassment, primary prevention methods, federal requirements, reporting obligations, trauma-informed response, and campus policies and resources.

Course 7:

Title IX, The Clery Act, and VAWA for Faculty and Staff

This course covers compliance with Title IX, the Clery Act, and VAWA -- the laws that protect you and your students from sexual violence and discrimination. You will be able to recognize incidences of sexual violence and discrimination and respond appropriately when a student or colleague tells you about sexual violence or discrimination.

Course 8:

Clery Act Overview

This course is designed to educate college faculty and staff about the legal requirements mandated by the Clery Act. Topics covered include the importance of this legislation, campus security authorities' reporting responsibilities, the elements of the Annual Security Report, and timely warning and emergency notifications.
